Crossing Bridges . . .

What a lot of valuable time we waste over things that never happen. The imaginary fear that eats into our sleep; the consequences of some trivial mistake; the little problems we magnify out of all proportion.

Many of us go through life trying to cross bridges long before we come to them. It is a state of mind against which we have to be constantly on our guard. Worry — especially unnecessary worry — can so easily take possession of us and make our lives a misery.

We must avoid worry the first essential is to decide not to be upset by things that are really of little importance. Some people are so easily knocked out of their stride. They get themselves all worked up without reasonable cause.

They worry about what other people think of them. They grow distrustful and take offence where none is intended.

Even the irritations that come to us from our fellow beings are unintentional. They are largely the result of our own sensitive natures — or perhaps our own vanity.

When we think we are hurt by others we are really hurting ourselves.

What is the protection against all worries? The first thing to believe is that, however troublous our own may be, other people have much more serious. And folk with the greatest worries seldom talk about them. The smiling face doesn't always reflect the lightest heart. But it sees everything in its true perspective.

Such people are comforted by the knowledge that when things are going badly they might be worse. They believe, too, that sooner or later things will get better. And the hopeful in heart are always rewarded. cheerfulness is the greatest enemy of worry.

The best protection of all is a tranquil mind. We should all try to cultivate it so that if and when real trouble comes we have the strength and courage to face it undismayed.

People Will Talk You Know

You may get through this world, but it will be very slow, if you listen to what others say about you. You will worry and fretted, and sit in a stew for middlesome tongues must have something to do, for people will talk you know.

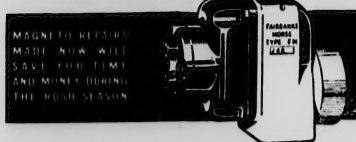

If quiet and modest you'll have presumed that your humble position is only assumed, you're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool, but don't get excited, keep perfectly cool, for people will talk you know.

If you dress in fashion, don't think to earn respect, criticize you in a different shape; you're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid, but keep straight ahead for there's naught to be made for people will talk you know.

And then, if you show the least boldness of heart, or slight inclination to take your own part, they will call you an upstart, conceited and vain, but keep straight ahead and don't stop to explain for people will know.

The best way to do is to do as you please and your mind if you have one will sure be at ease; of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse, but don't stop to think, for it ain't any use, for people will talk you know.

W. K. Snyder
Field Supervisor

Bird's Foot Trefoil: Some of you have been asking me about this new legume and wonder if it would adapt to this climate. I would like to direct your attention to the experimental test plots that were seeded in 1952. These plots have done very well worth your while to have a look at them yet before they are harvested. These plots are located at various points throughout the municipality so that you can easily reach for inspection. Following is a list of those locations:

Ed Snyder, five miles west, one mile north of Crossfield; R. M. Poirier, four miles south, one mile west of Cartstain; J. E. McNeil, eight miles east of Didsbury; Earl Braun, 10 miles west and three miles north of Didsbury; A. J. Hammer, two miles east of Olds.

I think that it would be well worth your while to see one of these plots and examine the bird's foot trefoil for yourself.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How we may prove and experience man's God-given dominion over material bondage of all kinds — sin, disease and limitation — will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Matter". The spiritual heritage of freedom is set forth in the following selection from the Bible (Galatians 4: 6, 7): "And because ye are sons of God, forasmuch as through the Spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ."

The following passage will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (223: 3): "Sooner or later we shall learn that the fester of man's iniquity necessarily is forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit."

ATOM AGE WEALTH

This country is more richly endowed with hydro power resources than almost any other in the world. On a clear day, in light winds, when existing sources just won't meet the growing demand of industrial development, and a rising standard of living.

History has plenty of examples of countries — or areas — that declined when they ran out of certain natural resources. On this continent we have ghost towns where local resource petered out.

In the atomic age, however, says The Financial Post, Canada should have no fears about becoming a ghost country. With vast stores of uranium — from which atomic energy is developed — Canada is again fortunate in having generous supplies of the material that will be sought as the answer to her — and the world's — future power needs.

DISTRICT NEWSM.V.B.C. NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The campus was a bee-hive of activity a week ago Monday when some 15 men arrived to help put in the cement sidewalk to the apartments and new class room on the west side of the third building. Mrs. Taylor and Miss Eby, with some assistance, prepared a dinner for them, and before long the work was done. Some work was also done on the apartments. The next day a number of men came to put in the forms of the cement walls and to run cement into these. Good weather greatly assisted this work. We do appreciate the help of our friends at this time.

Mr. Elah Shantz put in a couple of week's work on the apartments. Thank you so much. On Friday last a large number of ladies were busy in the kitchen preparing 80 cups of soup for the workers. What a time they had, and the work was done with great speed, so much so, that they had time in the afternoon to can the beans and make some pickles for the college. To these willing workers we say thank you. Incidentally, the chickens were a donation.

Miss Virginia Hamm is staying at the college until her room at the hospital can again be used. We are glad to do this for our very fine hospital in this time of need.

Miss Sander has been busily engaged visiting the various fields of the conference in connection with the organization of Women's Missionary Societies, and explaining the needs of the work to those that are organized. Last week she organized a new class in the Big Valley district.

Miss Lois Suder entertained President Taylor and his wife and family, and Miss Eby, Saturday evening for supper. She did a fine job with her supper and all enjoyed it immensely.

Miss Mary Walsh, dean of women of the college, returned here on September 15. There will be a great deal of cleaning and work of various kinds before college opens on October 1.

We are sure that after helping some of you may feel you can give just phone her at 106 if you can spare a little time.

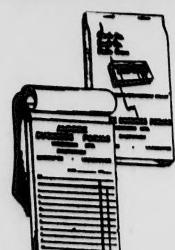

The apartments need to be painted now. They will be quite comfortable, and certainly appreciated by those who will live in them.

Word has come that Mr. and Mrs. Lusk will be here for a few days sometime during the beginning of the month. It will be nice to have them with us again. He is preparing for the Didsbury Choral Society which will be organized again this fall. The society will not prepare an oratorio this winter but rather shorter selections that will be most interesting to those who join.

FARM MECHANIZATION

Farm mechanization has been going ahead in North America at a rapid pace, particularly during the past quarter of a century. In 1951 the number of tractors on U.S. farms was 3,940,000, while the horse population had declined from 6,100,000 to 4,370,000.

In Canada in 1951, the number of tractors totalled 318,383, while the horse population had declined from 2,032,000 in 1947 to 1,364,000 in 1951.

The Army of The Helping Hand

For more than half a century the Salvation Army has been engaged in practical work on behalf of those who are less fortunate in life. Those who have not or never really had a foothold, and who have been sucked downward to the hopeless under-strata of despair and perhaps crime.

In launching his famous "Darkness England" scheme in 1890, General William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, called the people of his generation to "recognize that we are our brother's keeper and should set to work, regardless of party distinctions and religious differences, to make this world of ours a bit more like home for those whom we call our brethren."

Across Canada the Salvation Army operates a chain of social service institutions that ministers to a variety of human needs. Changing social conditions have not removed the need for these institutions; they are still an essential part of life for thousands of men who daily live and work in the cities and towns. They are havens of help and a refuge for the thousands of women and children, infants and aged who look to the Salvation Army for the solution of their problem and in their emergency.

These 88 institutions in Canada serve beyond the perimeter of legislative welfare assistance. And more than that, they function with a spirit of compassion.

In such institutions, skilled Salvation Army officers are not concerned, naturally, with the lives of ordinary individuals. Their work is directed toward providing employment, help and encouragement for the unfortunate and the hopeless, with the prayer that such help may link need to such a power as can change the man — his character — his conduct.

The Salvation Army still maintains that no change in circumstance, no revolution in social conditions, can possibly transform the nature of man. The Army's demand for a better world is still the only satisfactory method of helping a man to help himself; only his own effort, plus the religious and moral training he receives during his sojourn in the home, can lead to a permanent change of character and a totally different outlook upon life.

Applicants to the Salvation Army for assistance fall roughly into two categories: those who are unemployed, present plight by reason of transgression or some defect in moral character; and those who seem to have had very little chance in life — sometimes born in sun-spotted atmosphere, or raised in circumstances which discounted innocence and often made vice second nature. Each member of either class has to be dealt with according to personal needs.

Salvation Army institutions were originally opened for the purpose of helping those who were floundering into the morass of despair to get on their feet. They were designed to open a way of escape from degrading circumstances. Again, in the words of William Booth, these harbours of help "do gather up the poor destitute creatures, support their infirmities, present their necessities, find them employment, inspire them with hope for the future and commence at once a course of regeneration by moral and religious influences". That the 88 Salvation Army social service institutions in Canada are today carrying out the high intentions of the founder is evident.

To maintain those "high intentions" money is urgently needed. During the Grace Hospital and Home Building Appeal now in progress, citizens of Calgary and surrounding district will have an opportunity to speed this wonderful work on its worthy way. In this way you can help the Army of the Helpless Hand!

REDEEMER LADIES' AID REGULAR MEETING

Redeemer Ladies' Aid met for September opened with the singing of hymn 446, followed by a scripture reading and prayer.

Mrs. Faaas gave a very interesting five-minute talk on the subjects "Electrocution" and "Scotch Tape".

Canadian public libraries carry 6,800,000 books.

Mistakes are lessons of wisdom. The past cannot be changed. The future is yet in your power.
